435 elect student senators

By Jo-Ellen Hunt
Staff Writer

Thursday's Student Senate election brought 435 voters to the polls, an estimated 6 percent of the eligible constituents.

Two senators were elected to on-campus seats, two to commuter seats and three to off-campus positions. Another senator will be elected to fill a commuter seat after a tie for fourth place in that category is broken by the vote of the Student Senate.

New senators for the 1983-84 academic year are T.R. "Russ" McGrady and Scott E. Frye, on-campus; Robert Bennett, Ann Harman, and Keith Woodrum, off-campus; and Richard A. Sullivan and John McOwen, commuter.

Don Robertson, director of Residence Life and adviser to Student Government, said all election results are official and no vote was contested.

These are the election results for the on-campus Senate seat: T.R. "Russ" McGrady, 150; Scott E. Frye, 129; Sara B. Nay, 106; and for write-in candidates, "Franklin," 1; Ben Arbaugh, 1; Matthew Taylor, 1; Fred Riley, 2; Tom Ratkovich, 1; Chico Goodson, 2; Paul Babinski, 1; Kip Faulkes, 2, and Cindy Cassidy, 1.

Off-campus seat votes were as follows: Robert W. Bennett, 49; Ann Harman, 48; Keith M. Woodrum, 31; Janis Winkfield, 27; Joel Cook, 25; Mark Remington, 24; Bradford Deel, 18; John Hutcheson, 17; and for write-in candidates, Robin Breeden, 1; John Saldyon, 1; and Dave Zinkham, 1.

These are commuter results: John J. McOwen, 57; Richard A. Sullivan, 53. Jane Daugherty and William Bands tied with 46 each.

Part-time faculty laid off for spring

By Edgar Simpson
Special Correspondent

A one-percent slash in the personnel service budget has forced Marshall University to lay off all part-time faculty members for the spring semester, according to Olen E. Jones, provost.

Jones said the cutting of part-time faculty will enable the university to guarantee full-time faculty pay for two sessions of summer school.

He said the possibility of faculty members refusing to accept positions in the summer sessions is remote.

"Our people need that money to survive," he said.

Jones would not confirm exactly how many courses would be affected for the spring schedule, but a report earlier this week from the Board of Regents listed 160 sections that may be canceled.

The one-percent cut, which translates into about $123,000, will not affect graduate assistants, Jones said.

He said Marshall makes a commitment to graduate students for a full academic year which cannot be altered.

There is no question students will be directly affected by the faculty cut, Jones said.

"There won't be the selection or variety offered in past years," he said.

However, the cut may cause alarm among students who are set to graduate in the spring, he said.

"I have instructed academic deans to make substitutions wherever possible," he said.

Since the majority of classes are lower division, Jones said most seniors won't experience any big problems.

He said class overload should not be a problem, but he did not rule out the possibility.

Marshall should return to full staffing in the fall of next year, he said.

Nine applicants added after search deadline

By Sandra Joy Adkins
Special Correspondent

Nine persons have been added to the list of those who will be considered as applicants for the presidency of Marshall University, according to the secretary of the search committee.

William J. Walsh, personnel director for the BOR and executive secretary to the MU Presidential Search and Screening Advisory Committee, said the number of applicants as of Thursday is 91.

He said the nine additions arrived after the Oct. 1 deadline but had an Oct. 1 postmark. The number of persons being considered Monday was 82.

The applicants are not considered candidates for the presidency until the search committee narrows the field down to eight.

Those eight will be brought to campus for interviews. The committee will narrow the field to three to five names from which the Board of Regents will choose Marshall's next president.

Members of the search committee who attended the Vital Issues Program Monday said the final three to five candidates will be recommended to the regents in the committee's priority order.

However, Walsh said the names will be listed in alphabetical order and that the regents will not know the top choice of the committee.

He said the resumes recently received will be sent to the committee members Tuesday.

Rule opens protected land to strip mining

CHARLESTON - West Virginia will benefit from a new Interior Department regulation making 55,000 acres in the federally-protected New River Gorge area vulnerable to strip mining, state Natural Resources Director David Callaghan said Thursday.

The rule, which takes effect Oct. 14, defines cases in which companies may strip mine privately owned coal deposits even though they lie within the boundaries of national parks, forests and wildlife refuges.

About 55,000 acres of coal-rich private land are located along the New River, which was put under federal protection in 1978. The 55,000 acres, however, have yet to be bought by the government. The Interior Department said in 1981 that the land contained 4 million tons of coal.

Hearing affects tax changes

CHARLESTON - State Tax Commissioner Ned Rose says he will modify proposed changes in tax regulations because of comments he heard at a public hearing.

About 110 people, including former Tax Commissioner Tom Goodwin and several businessmen, showed up for the hearing Wednesday at the Charleston Civic Center.

The hearing was held so tax officials could get public comment on rules changes prompted by a law passed last June implementing the statewide property reappraisal ordered by Circuit Judge Arthur Recht in his Lincoln County school case.

The rules are designed to help the Tax Department determine the market value of intangible personal property such as stocks, bonds and retirement investment accounts. The rules also govern taxation of coal and timber land.

$60 million bid for company

CHARLESTON - Columbia Gas System probably will accept a $60 million offer to sell its 209,000-customer West Virginia subsidiary, the state's largest gas company, Columbia Chairman W.F. Laird said Thursday.

The prospective buyer of Columbia Gas of West Virginia Inc. is Charleston-based Allegheny & Western Energy Corp., Laird told the state Public Service Commission.

The parent company will make a decision Oct. 15 on offers to buy the West Virginia company, Laird said. If the deal goes through, "we would aim for a closing date March 31" to complete the sale, Laird said.

CIA may have given planes to rebel forces

WASHINGTON - A plane that crashed last month during a rebel bombing raid in Nicaragua was provided to anti-Sandinista insurgents by the Central Intelligence Agency, sources told the Associated Press.

Nicaragua's Foreign Ministry had claimed in the aftermath of the Sept. 8 raid on Nicaragua's main air base and international airport that the Cessna 404 had been given to the rebels as part of CIA assistance.

Among documents released by the Sandinistas was one pilot's Florida driver's license, his U.S. Social Security card and American credit cards.

The papers showed that the pilot, Agustin Roman, a one-time top Sandinista air force official who had defected, had made recent flights to Costa Rica, El Salvador, Venezuela, Miami, Houston and New York.

Bill compensates widow

WASHINGTON - The house has passed a nearly $445 million catchall supplemental spending bill that includes compensation for the widow of Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., who died in a Soviet attack on a civilian airliner.

By a 363-30 vote Wednesday, the House approved the measure and sent it to the Senate. The bulk of the money the bill provides - $317 million - is for several veterans' benefit programs. Of that, $57.4 million is set aside for the fiscal 1984 portion of a mandated $75 million study by the Centers for Disease Control on the health impact of the defoliant Agent Orange on Vietnam-era soldiers.

Also included in the measure is a $69,800 payment to McDonald's widow, Kathryn. McDonald was a passenger on the south Korean airliner shot down by a Soviet interceptor in August.

Support for Watt 'weak'

WASHINGTON - With Senate support for Interior Secretary James Watt eroding and a no-confidence vote a growing possibility, the White House said today it would welcome an expression of Senate sentiment on his future, but would not feel bound by it.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Watt had not been asked to resign. But leading Senate Republicans say support for Watt has become so weak that a no-confidence vote may be inevitable unless he resigns soon.

Lebanon may scrap withdrawal accord

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan accused Israel Thursday of a "flagrant violation" of the May 17 troop withdrawal accord and indicated Lebanon might scrap the pact.

In southern Lebanon, meanwhile, an Israeli-backed militia commander switched on the ignition of his car, setting off a bomb that killed him and critically wounded his wife in a towering ball of flames.

The victim, Hussein Wahbe, a Shi'ite Moslem, was leader of the Israeli-supported militia known as the National Guard in Adloun, 30 miles south of Beirut. Israeli forces sealed off the town and arrested 40 members of the Shi'ite Amal militia, which has vowed to punish any collaborator with Israel.

Wazzan in a statement to reporters broadcast nationwide, accused Israel of violating the pullout agreement by its partial withdrawal of troops from the Chouf and Alay mountains Sept. 4.

Argentines mob banks

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina - Nervous Argentines mobbed several Buenos Aires banks Thursday seeking to remove contents of safe deposit boxes because they fear the debt-plagued government might impound the boxes.

The banks, in a bid to hold on to foreign currency, began implementing government orders freezing fixed-term deposits in foreign money and requiring that checks in foreign currency be redeemed only in Argentine pesos.

"We had 650 people in here all at once," said an executive at the Banco Frances, jammed by Argentines trying to get to their safe deposit boxes. "We had to call our security people to keep order."

Many depositors were thought to have foreign currency or other liquid assets in the safe deposit boxes and believed the government's next move might be to impound the contents.

British writer wins Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden - British writer William Golding, whose novels, including "Lord of the Flies," depict the savage side of human nature, won the 1983 Nobel Prize in literature Thursday.

The Swedish Nobel Committee cited Golding's novels for their clarity, diversity and "universality of myth" that "illuminate the human condition in the world today."

Opinion

Will history repeat itself on pay hike?

State college and university full-time employees may have gained a glimmer of optimism from this week's announcement that the 1984-85 budget request approved by the Board of Regents calls for a 15-percent salary increase.

But that optimism must be guarded.

A look back into recent history shows that the BOR last fall requested a 10-percent across-the-board salary increase for all full-time employees. In addition, it also requested a 4-percent increase for promotions, merit and length of service benefits.

However, when those proposals came before the West Virginia Legislature for final approval they were denied. Instead, a faculty improvement fee was instituted which will provide a relatively small pay supplement and will be distributed in December and May.

Quality faculty and staff members are one asset which Marshall University must protect. The university has already lost some of its most highly regarded faculty members because they could no longer sacrifice adequate wages in order to teach in a West Virginia institution of higher education. The faculty, students and all concerned with the quality of education in this state must begin now to show their support for increased salaries or risk another year without a significant change in employee wages and therefore a loss of personnel.

It is commendable that the BOR has proposed a 15-percent salary increase. But the Legislature must now be made aware of the necessity of this request. History may indeed repeat itself until the day teachers, students and residents of the state express a strong and unified voice calling for higher pay for college and university employees.

Students Speak

Today's topic: What do you think Student Government does for you?

Jere Gaeger,
Baltimore freshman

"I don't really know what Student Government does. I know Student Government sponsors some extracurricular activities. But, for instance, I don't know anything about the candidates. I didn't know there was an election until today (Thursday)."

Tom Osburn,
Parkersburg junior

"It tries to unite the students, so that we have some kind of organization on the student level. It tries to make up policies to benefit the students."

Debby Williams,
Huntington freshman

"Hopefully, it shows the reaction of students in general to what goes on around us."

Marti Williams,
Parkersburg sophomore

"I don't really know anything about Student Government. I feel I should, but I've never made the time to get involved."

(Students were interviewed randomly and photographed by Jeff Seager.)

Student commends participants in bonfire, pep rally

Dear editor:

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to everyone who attended the Bonfire/Pep rally sponsored by the Student Government Association and the Twin Towers East Hall Advisory Council.

I would like to give special thanks to the following people for all their help in organizing, gathering wood, and security of the bonfire: Jim Forbes, Master of Ceremonies; Jim Datin; Jane Daugherty; Michele Hale; Kevin Roach; Jim Terry; Aaron Alexander; Scott Brunetti; Tom Foley; Phil

Silberstein (Student Activities); Norman Mosrie; John Frasinelli; and Craig McClellan. I apologize if I left someone out. An extra special thanks should be extended to A. James Manchin, Secretary of State, for helping Mike Queen and myself light the spectacular fire.

Congratulations to our team on Saturday. Although the team didn't win in points, they will always win in our hearts. I hope that the large turnout at the bonfire shows the team that we are behind them ALL the way. Coach Sonny Randle was correct when he stated in the Herald Dispatch, "I am looking for the home crowd to provide the emotional spark I feel the Herd needs on Saturday." It's a good thing that the home crowd provides the "spark" needed because Coach Randle couldn't even make it to the pep rally on Thursday. Why? Mr. Randle had some scouting he needed to do. Where were the other coaches? I suppose that they had more important things to do. It sounds to me that apathy is not only within the students, but the coaches as well.

I would finally like to thank Dr. Nell Bailey, Dean of Student Affairs, for directing the fire trucks onto the field, Rita Mann, Student Conduct coordinator, for helping the fireman put out the hot coals, and to security for contacting the fire department for us and for making the fire department keep their promise.

Sincerely,
Joe D. Trembly,
Twin Towers East
Hall Advisory Council

Nigeria celebrates independence anniversary

To the editor:

We gathered together to perform a memorable act and give a name. Under a flood of glowing light by the midnight of September 30, 1960, we surrounded a flagstaff. They lowered the Union Jack and we in its place raised a new flag, with one white strip in between two green strips at the extremes. As the flag fluttered in the cool breeze our hearts danced in excitement. And so when a new day dawned a new nation was born: Nigeria. That was 23 years ago. Independence stirred us to many aspirations and inspirations, for Britain had left us to decide our future and determine our destiny...

After the election into different political and government posts in Nigeria, a few months ago many famed statesmen, political experts and newsmen in the world praised her as a leading African nation on the path of democratic government. Perhaps so!

Nigerian students, 54 in number, in Marshall University and the Huntington community celebrate Nigeria's 23rd independence anniversary this week with four main events on the agenda: take a photograph with the Acting President of Marshall University, Dr. Sam Clagg; in the evening of the same Friday have a friendly soccer match on Marshall campus field; a party on Saturday - a time for close communion and sharing with each other; and end with election of new officers on Sunday...

We salute the federal government of U.S.A., Huntington and the Marshall community. We hope that the friendship and understanding that have developed between the two countries, on private and public levels, will continue to flourish.

We salute President Shehu Shagari, who was sworn into his second term of office on the 1st of October 1983.

To our country, we say, Nigeria we hail thee though far away.

Peter Okemuo
Acting President
Nigerian Students' Union
Marshall University

SGA leader declines offer from Ginsberg

By Theresa Bland
Staff Writer

The Student Body President felt it was not proper for the student member of the President's Search and Screening Committee to accept a dinner invitation from potential candidate Leon Ginsburg.

Student Body President Michael L. Queen, Clarksburg junior, said the State Human Services Commissioner called the Student Government offices and set up a luncheon date for Wednesday.

"I felt it wasn't fair to the other potential candidates," Queen said.

He said he had not met with any of the other potential candidates and was certain other members of the committee would not either.

"It is not fair to meet with any of the candidates at this stage of the game," he said.

There are 27 candidates Queen said he was interested in. All had been involved with Student Governments, had full-time teaching experience, and had worked with administration and academic standards, he said.

Ginsburg showed real interest in the position, Queen said.

"He probably called to see what I'm looking for in a president and my expectations. But it is not fair to candidates from out of state," he said.

In a Charleston Gazette article Ginsburg stated that he was optimistic about his chances of being named MU president and that he had many supporters on campus.

Breakfast with president lets students speak

By Vicki Smith
Staff Writer

Acting President Sam E. Clagg has breakfast with leaders from four campus organizations at the President's Dining Room in Memorial Student Center.

"This is an informal meeting over breakfast to discuss any type of campus issue they feel the president should know about," according to Carla J. Seamonds, graduate student with the student life office.

"Breakfast with the President" is a program organized by Student Life and sponsored by the Higher Education Resource Fund. Student Life randomly selects four campus organization from one of the seven categories and invites the adviser and president of the organization to the breakfast.

There are seven different classifications of student organizations on campus: departmental, honorary, social, interest, religious, provisional and professional.

"Those issues discussed at the breakfast are directly looked into by the president or Student Government," Seamonds said.

Issues that were discussed over the past two breakfasts which are being investigated are: solicitation policies in the residence halls concerning what kind of flyers can be used and in the halls and where they can be placed, lengthening of the Henderson Center hours, and changes that have been made this year with the residence hall phone system, which does not allow residents to get an outside line.

"The issues discussed in these meetings are helpful information for the president," Seamonds said. "Right now he is trying to help small organizations get bank accounts."

The next breakfast will be Oct. 19 and leaders from four social groups will be invited.

MU 'Wellness Week' starts Sunday

By Molly Munchmeyer
Staff Writer

"Pleasure of Wellness" is the theme for this year's Wellness Week being sponsored Sunday through Oct. 15 by Student Health Programs.

Wellness Week, which is sponsored each year, is a week designed to promote mental and physical well-being on campus, James B. Wade, Jr., student assistant for student health programs, said.

Wellness Week will begin at 3 p.m. Sunday with track prediction fun runs on the MU track. Participants will predict how long it will take them to walk, jog or run a mile. Winners who come closest to their predictions will win T-shirts.

A lecture, "Shoe Talk," will be given by Christopher Parsons, assistant manager of the Athlete's Foot, at 7 p.m. Monday in Harris Hall Room 134. Parsons will discuss which types of shoes are best to be worn during different athletic activities.

Free health screening will be sponsored from noon to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Memorial Student Center Alumni Lounge. Health professionals from the Cabell County Health Department will check blood pressures. Computer health games will be sponsored by John Marshall Medical Services Inc. and a biofeedback machine will be sponsored by the psychology department.

An panel discussion on the effects of alcohol, sponsored by BACCHUS (Boost Alcohol Consciousness Concerning the Health of University Students) will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday. The first 30 minutes of the discussion will be broadcast on WMUL-FM.

A sexuality seminar, which will include discussion on sexually transmitted diseases, will be given at 4 p.m. Tuesday in the Campus Christian Center. Gregory C. Moore, supervisor of the Venereal Disease Bureau of the State Department of Health, will conduct the seminar.

A lunch-bag seminar, "Women and Reproductive Health," will be sponsored by the Women's Center Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m.

BACCHUS also will sponsor an alcohol breathalyzer test Thursday from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the Coffee House.

Expert to assess MU's need for new art facility

By David Neff
Staff Writer

Ralph Burgard, an arts planning official from New York City, will be on campus Monday through Thursday to conduct a facilities needs assessment for the fine and performing arts, according to Roberta Walters, director of the Institute for the Arts.

Approval for Burgard to assess Marshall's facilities was given by the Board of Regents.

Burgard will be working with faculty and staff members involved in the arts programs, as well as interested persons from campus and the community to determine space needs and evaluate existing facilities on campus and in the community.

He will also review previous studies conducted by Marshall, and tour existing facilities in Smith Hall and Old Main, as well as facilities in the community.

According to Bruce S. Greenwood, auditorium manager of the School of Fine Arts, Burgard will evaluate the Keith-Albee Theater to determine the feasibility of including it in any fine and performing arts facilities plan for Marshall.

Burgard's report, which is to be completed by Nov. 1, will be the basis for designing construction needs identified during the study.

Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Student Center, Burgard will meet with administration, faculty and students to discuss needs and ideas for the future of the arts at Marshall, Walters said.

Burgard's background in cultural development projects includes development of comprehensive cultural plans for the Charlotte, Mecklenburg County United Arts Council; the Washington Parks and Recreation Commission; the National Endowment for the Arts; and the Cultural Arts Council of Houston.

Campus crime problem includes fighting, theft

By Paul Carson
Staff Writer

An altercation between roommates in Holderby Hall early Wednesday resulted in the arrest of one student, according to a report filed in the Office of Public Safety.

John Boston, a resident of 327 Holderby Hall, was charged with brandishing a weapon (knife). He taken to the Cabell County Jail and later released on $500 bond. The magistrate's clerk said a hearing was set for Oct. 13.

The warrant was signed by Boston's roommate, Greg Chapman. Boston was then arrested by university police.

University Police Investigator R.N. Huff said the incident is still under investigation.

In other university police action last week, larceny continued to be a problem, as over $200 was taken from three university locations.

According to reports filed in the Office of Public Safety, $120 was taken from a desk drawer in the Speech and Hearing Clinic on Sept. 28.

Don Salyers, director of public safety, said a key was apparently used for entry, since clinic personnel insisted all doors and desks were locked at the time. The money was taken from an envelope but several checks contained in the same envelope were not taken.

Also on Sept. 28, the cash drawer from the Coffee House was pilfered. It had been locked in the student center director's filing cabinet. According to a report filed in the security office, $27 was taken from the drawer while $18 was left untouched.

On Monday, a resident of Twin Towers reported the theft of $60 from his room. The theft occurred between 9:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. and there were no signs of forcible entry, according to the crime report. The student told university police his door was locked.

All three investigations are continuing, but there are no suspects at this time, according to Huff.

Who will be MU's quarterback?

East Tennessee State next on Herd's menu

By Tom Alulse
Sports Editor

Marshall's defense better be hungry Saturday at 7 p.m. when East Tennessee State visits Fairfield Stadium equipped with its wingbone offense.

"It's like a smorgasbord," Herd mentor Sonny Randle said of the Buccaneers' offense. "There's so many different things you can do with it."

The wingbone is essentially a wishbone with a number of variations, including moving a tailback into the wing position.

"It will drive you crazy," Randle said. "Our defensive coaches have spent more time this week here (football offices) than at home."

East Tennessee, 1-3 overall and 0-2 in the Southern Conference, lost to Appalachian State last week 27-11 and the Buccaneers' first-year coach, Buddy Sasser, said he is hoping his team's multitude of mistakes against Appy State will be corrected this week.

"We made more mistakes against Appalachian State than we have the whole season," Sasser said. "It's a puzzle to me."

Marshall, 1-4 and 0-2, is still looking for its first Southern Conference victory in front of a home crowd at Fairfield Stadium.

"East Tennessee needs this one as bad we do," Randle said. "This is just a crucial game for us as far as the rest of the season goes and in what direction we're heading. It's absolutely critical."

Randle said Thursday a change at quarterback is a possibility. Dan Patterson, who is fifth in the conference in passing efficiency, has started in the Herd's last three games but could be replaced Saturday with junior college transfer Tim Kendrick or sophomore Carl Fodor.

"It's not a demotion for Dan, we're just looking for a spark," Randle said. "The last two weeks we haven't seen anything good or anything bad. Tim Kendrick has settled down and I think Carl Fodor deserves a shot also."

Kendrick was Marshall's starting quarterback in its first two games and completed 13 of 30 passes for 98 yards. He also threw five interceptions.

Fodor, who took over the signal-calling duties in the Herd's sixth game last season, ended the year with 45 completions on 121 attempts for 527 yards.

East Tennessee, meanwhile, claims the fifth and sixth-ranked rushers in the conference and the 14th best rushing offense in the nation among NCAA Division I-AA teams. ETSU is second in the conference in rushing and fourth in total offense.

The Buccaneers' tailback Henry Latham is No. 5 in the SC with 49 carries and 253 yards followed by teammate Vince Redd who has totaled 248 yards on 45 carries.

"Every year we are supposedly better than East Tennessee but we haven't beat them," Randle said. "You can talk about all you want but until we beat them you can't say you're as good or better."

East Tennessee leads the series with Marshall 3-0. The Buccaneers crushed the Herd last season in Johnson City, Tenn., 28-0.

"The mental thing is what is killing me," Randle said of his Herd. "If they'll just fire that's all it would take to get going. They need to believe that they're pretty good."

"If we win Saturday we can still have a big year. All you have to do is look at our schedule and you can figure it out."

Southern Conference in pass defense and is among the top I-AA teams in the nation.

Harriers to face ETSU; Bucs ranked fourth in country

After an easy victory in a three-team meet last week at Eastern Kentucky, Marshall's cross country team heads south to Boone, N.C., for Saturday's Appalachian State Invitational.

Twelve teams will participate in the tournament, including national power East Tennessee State. The Buccaneers are ranked fourth in the nation in Division I and have won the Southern Conference title the past five years.

"East Tennessee will obviously be favored to win the meet," Marshall coach Rod O'Donnell said. "They don't have very much depth but if their top five guys run well they should win."

The race will be conducted on the same course where this season's Southern Conference meet will be run Nov. 5.

"We're looking to finish in the upper third of the field," O'Donnell said, adding that he is pleased with the Herd's performance so far in 1983.

Soccer team looking to kick itself into gear tonight

Marshall's soccer team will be looking to reverse its recent fortunes tonight when it takes on Old Dominion in Norfolk, Va.

Tonight's match is the first round of the Old Dominion Classic. The winner will face the winner of the West Virginia-Brooklyn College matchup.

Coach Jack DeFazio has seen his team's record fall to 5-4, including three losses in the past four games. The Herd was shutout Wednesday by Ohio State, 1-0.

The Buckeyes winning goal came early in the second half when striker Rich Castillo dribbled 50 yards before drilling a shot by Marshall goalkeeper Dave Papalia from 20 yards out.

Ohio State then held off a late charge by the Herd in posting its fifth win of the season against five losses. The victory also avenged last season's 2-0 loss to Marshall in Columbus.

Senior Andy Zulauf continues to lead the Herd in goals with seven, followed by Greg Ogle and Chris Peckich with three each.
